

Dear Diary,

Today was crazy, King Midas turned his daughter into gold and back and this is how it happened. First of all the King met a Satyr, I thought it was an ordinary goat but then it spoke.

At lunch the King had a conversation with the Satyr about where he came from. I overheard and the Satyr was the servant of the King.

After lunch the King took the Satyr to Dionysus. When King Midas got back he looked devastated. I spoke to the guy driving the chariot and he said the King was granted a wish but it hasn't happened yet. Then as I was walking down the hall I saw gold pillars and vases everywhere. I couldn't believe my eyes, the gold was so shiny! The next thing I know the King demanded a celebratory meal. Us servants are very fond of King Midas and so we cooked and served him a feast. But as he ate, the food turned into gold. I was so scared for the King because he would starve.

I saw the King go out to the rose garden. His daughter saw him and ran to give him a cuddle but as he touched her she turned to gold. I gasped with fright, I can't believe she is gold!!! I could see King Midas was crying. I heard him pray to Dionysus, "Take my wish back! Take my wish back and save my daughter!” And with a sigh of relief, the King’s wish was granted.

Phew!!! That’s enough excitement for one day!
