

The Vikings

Made and written not by a viking also known as Elizabeth

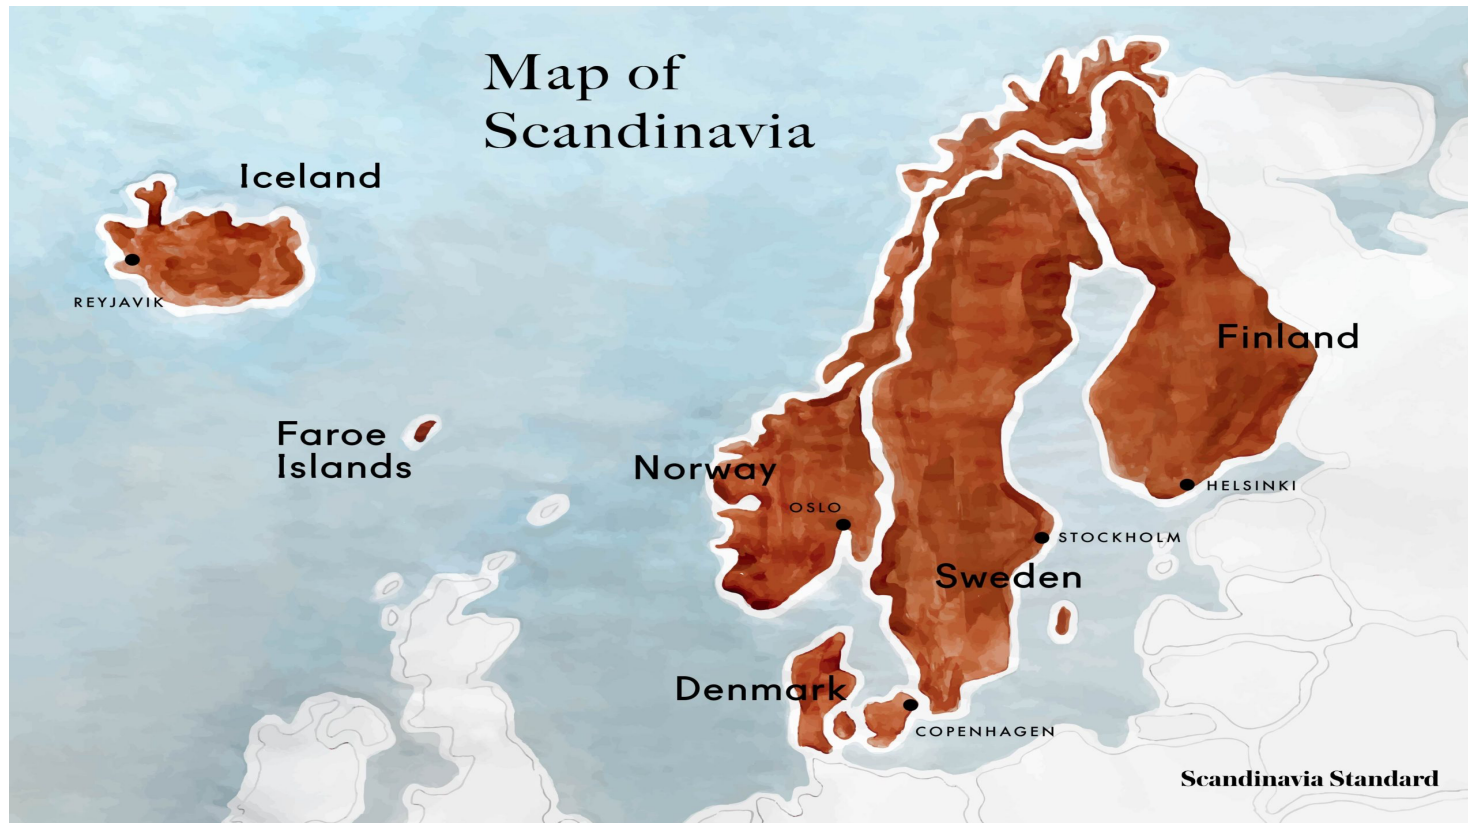

When the Vikings came to Britain.

In 793 the Vikings first invaded Britain. They first invaded Lindisfarne a small holy island on the Northeast coast of England.

Where did they come from?

The vikings were Norse people and came from Scandinavia but we know it today as Norway, Sweden and Denmark. They left their home countries to search for great wealth and an adventure

How did they get to Britain?

The Vikings made their way to England by boat which they called a longship. They learned over the years how to make longships and they then became expert sailors. They used a sun stone, sight and nature to navigate them around the world.

Longships were the Vikings sea vessel, they were around 14-23 meters long and made out of wood. They had a single square sail which they used to go faster. They could also use oars to row if there wasn't enough wind.
